TIME → TENSE → VOICE → FULL VERB. Read the whole context. A receiver needs passive; a doer needs active. Every item is a new decision.

Past ongoing: was/were V-ing ↔ was/were being + V3 · Present result: has/have V3 ↔ has/have been + V3.

Earlier duration: had been V-ing (active) ≠ had been + V3 (past-perfect passive).

SELF-CHECK

- ☐ I used the time relationship, not one keyword. ☐ I checked the doer/receiver again.
- ☐ I kept the tense when switching voice. ☐ I checked V3 after have/has/had and in passives.
- ☐ I checked the time preposition and left correct sentences unchanged. ☐ I attempted every item.

First attempt: ____ /20 · Corrections completed: ____ · Answers shown below are models; equivalent grammatical wording is accepted when the required tense, voice and target are preserved.

Q	Answer	Why / marking	Marks
1	T	Appropriate is the adjective needed after is. The form is already correct; appropriately is an adverb and does not describe the design here.	1
2	F	The files receive the action, and the completed backup has a current result. Present perfect passive uses have been + past participle. Corrected sentence: The archive files have been backed up, so a safe copy is available now.	1
3	T	Jo is the doer, and her preparations were ongoing at that past moment. Was preparing is past continuous active. Venture means go somewhere despite uncertainty or risk.	1
4	F	Use on for a named day and its morning, but in for a month. Corrected sentence: The astronomy workshop is held on Saturday mornings in October.	1
5	was being repaired	The telescope receives an action that was ongoing at a particular past moment. Use was being + repaired, not was repaired.	1
6	since	September is the starting point of a connection that continues now. Since introduces that starting point; for would need a duration such as three weeks.	1
7	settled down	Here settle down means begin a stable life in one place. This is a finished event in a finished past period, so use the active past simple settled down.	1
8	had been studying	Amir is the doer. The focus is the duration of an ongoing activity before another past event: had been + studying. Had been studied would be passive and would not match the facts.	1
9	until	Remaining is a state that continues up to an endpoint. Until gives that endpoint; by would describe a latest deadline for completing something.	1
10	for	Two hours states how long the generator ran, so use for. During the night watch identifies the event within which it ran, not the length of the running.	1
11	The weather records from the city's nineteenth-century slums have been digitised by the archivists this term.	The records become the receiving subject. Preserve present perfect with have been digitised and retain by the archivists and this term.	2
12	The relief team was delivering food to families who could not fend for themselves during the storm.	The relief team becomes the doing subject. Keep the ongoing past action as was delivering, not delivered. Fend for themselves means provide what they need without help; the storm explains the need for support.	2
13	Before the lesson began, Leo had been trying to grasp the star-map symbols for twenty minutes.	1: active had been trying; 1: grasp + for twenty minutes; 1: a complete sentence showing the earlier duration. Grasp means understand.	3
14	The storm warnings have been explained orally by the guides to illiterate visitors during today's tour, so the visitors understand them now.	1: have been explained; 1: illiterate + during today's tour; 1: a complete sentence retaining the doer and oral explanation. Illiterate concerns reading/writing, not intelligence.	3

Marking guide

Gap / T-F: 1 mark for the complete correct response. Rewriting: 1 mark for correct tense/aspect and verb phrase; 1 for the required voice with preserved meaning and subject/object agreement. Production: 1 for required tense/voice; 1 for the specified target word or time phrase; 1 for a complete grammatical sentence with capital and full stop. An answer to an F item only needs F, unless correction is expressly requested.

Watch-list: have/has/had + V3, not V2; continuous passive needs being; had been V-ing is active, not automatically passive. Since = starting point; for = duration; by = deadline; until = continuing up to an endpoint. Record first-attempt marks separately from red-pen repairs.
